Mites and Mud – By George the Damage They Can Do

George, a classic black and white cob was facing a brick wall. Despite trying lots of products from the Vet and via other avenues and with bills rising dramatically, George's behaviour became nervous and bad tempered as his sore legs did not improve.

Owners Ann Leatherland and Paul Mason from Leicestershire were tearing their hair out. They wanted their loving George back as he'd become difficult to handle, but they didn't know how to help him anymore. Also, the smell from his legs was worrying and he needed pain management too.

Then their luck changed when they spotted a small advert for Ruggle-it – a natural combination of a pioneering soap-free shampoo plus 100% natural vegetable oil blend – both containing naturally occurring anti-bacterial, anti-fungal and anti-bug properties. The Ruggle-it "duo" gently cleanse, soothe and defend irritated skin, but also kill mites which frequently masquerade as mud issues and/or attack the crusty areas. And because the shampoo is soap-free, rinsing and drying are not required – perfect in the depths of winter! And there's no picking of scabs – Mother Nature becomes angry if skin is exposed before it's ready – which makes sense when we think about it!

Due to the severity and duration of George's issues, Ruggles & Stopitall (R&S), advised that George use a combined Starter Pack (SP2-H Trigger) to try to achieve the fastest and most long-lasting results - Ruggle-it on the outsides but also with the 'pure' Protexin Equine Gut Balancer (no cereals or unnecessary fillers) to help his very challenged immune system.

Ann and Paul followed the simple but unusual Ruggle-it routine following their Mud/Fungal Planner, plus fed the Protexin at the customised levels suggested by R&S, and within days, the brick wall was disappearing!

Said Ann, "Already Geo is a lot brighter on your supplement, the smell has gone, the crusty bits are off and things are looking good. I am over the moon with the progress".

Progress continued with a few hiccups along the way, but Ann kept R&S updated so that they could offer their years of experience to help keep George's body recovering. Detering all types of mites and fungal issues in the future was clearly critical but with Ruggle-it, it's easy with a quick spray, sponge-on or dab in all the key places. As Millennium Mites breed away from the lower limbs and backs of knees, if we focus on just these areas, the invisible and extremely-hard-to-kill critters return and spread, e.g. to the mane and tail!

Said Ann: "If your horse is in trouble like George, I am sure these products will work! Just look at the before and after photos. He smells the Ruggle-it, I tell him to stand and he doesn't move even with no one holding him. George is happy again. It's amazing! He sends a very big kiss to say thank you".
