Dear Karen,

With ticks in our woodland although [REDACTED] [popular flea spot-on] or similar products seem to kill them once attached I believe an emulsion [diluted Ruggle-it oil mixture/spray] of Ruggle-it prevents or deters the initial attachment.

Since using the product I have found even in summer the dogs do not seem to be bothered by insects in general and I even use it on myself to achieve the same result. Hopefully it will also deter flea and fox mange mites [absolutely – virtually all walking or flying 'critters' run away from Ruggle-it!].

Obviously I have not undertaken any scientific testing of the product but as far as I am concerned it seems to do the job and I have recommended Ruggles and Stopitall to all 19 members of my shooting syndicate who have working gun dogs. Hopefully they will be converted.

The picture is of Bracken, Mr Westley and Smirf together with myself in the woodland on our dawn patrol having checked the pheasant feeders.

Regards John M Griffin, Secretary Great Thorns Shooting Syndicate.

Many thanks to Mr Griffin for taking the time to write this feedback.
