Dear All,

I have used the Shampoo in Summer for Bathing (to great effect). I also use your Oil (mixed with water) as a general fly [REDACTED] [spray/deterrent].

Now I just want to use the Ruggle-it as a spray on my mares legs and feet. She has the [REDACTED] mites [Veterinary termed species of mite **]

Thanks

Christine W.

ps I love your products. My mare is even soothed by the smell of them.

Teeko says thankyou... she is more peaceful now.... I tell her we'll get there.....

[**R&SL comment. As it's winter, the invisible Millennium Mites are also at their most active – the cooler the weather the more they eat flesh.

But as you cannot see them & they are very resistant to chemicals/traditional products, many animals suffer terribly with this invisible invader.

Thankfully most Millennium Mites loathe Ruggle-it whether on horses, pets, alpacas, farm animals, etc.,

So whenever itching outside of 'summer/flying bugs' season, it's cheaper & quicker to "assume it's Millennium Mites" - so just follow your ITCHING Planner closely as that's the easiest way to exterminate them/their eggs despite their extreme resistance to dying! Clever Mother Nature!]

Many thanks to Mrs Watts from Suffolk for taking the time to write this feedback.
