Hi Karen

Just thought I'd let you know how good ruggle-it is on mangie cats!

[REDACTED] [Veterinary mite/flea treatment] hardly made any difference and cost a fortune and my 2 stable cats were getting worse, so I decided to try ruffle-it and the first couple of times was interesting to say the least! Now they're used to it and I put it on every 3 days, paying special attention to areas such as armpits, ears and between toes - after 2 weeks virtually all their scabby bits have healed and fur growing back and their constant scratching has reduced to just the odd scratch here and there it also got rid of a tick too!

I have attached some of the cats all greased up, their skin looks good now and I don't have any when their skin was bad but they were bald and scabby and constantly biting and scratching themselves. (Ginger one Marmalade and black & white Jerry).

Jerry was more badly affected and had to have [REDACTED] [drugs], he was covered in weeping scabs all over his head, legs and feet and under his armpits and belly.

I often use ruffle-it on our alpacas and find it very effective for helping with damage done by mange mites, it soothes the skin and promotes hair growth, and helps keep flies and midges away from any problem areas.

I also use it on my horse as he gets [REDACTED] [summer itching] and found it helps with that too.

Many thanks
Karen
